INTRODUCTION.

THE Collection of Roman Gold Coins formed by H. OSBORNE O'HAGAN, Esq., and briefly described in the following pages, is sufficiently important, in respect of both quality and number, to merit a few introductory remarks.

Not for very many years has so large and complete a series been offered for sale in England, and examination will show that it compares very favourably with such famous French and English collections of Roman Gold Coins as the d'Amecourt, the De Quelen and the Hoffmann, the Bunbury and the Montagu; and that it far exceeds in scope and quality such illustration of the series as was offered by the Boyne, Hankin and McClean collections. Most of the interesting pieces hereinafter described come from one of the sources above named.

It is impossible to give here a list of the more brilliant and interesting coins contained in the collection, but many of them will be found figured on the plates accompanying the text, though it should be mentioned that the selection displayed on these by no means exhausts the store of desirable and rare pieces. Indeed, several very important pieces have been—by accident or necessity—omitted; notable amongst these are the extremely interesting Aureus of Hadrian (no. 312) with the rev. legend HERC. GADIT and a representation of the Tyrian Hercules, and the two exceedingly fine and rare medallions of Constantine the Great (nos. 752 and 753) with the inscriptions GLORIA CONSTANTINI. AVG.

The collection reveals so wonderful a series of Imperial portraits —which, it should be remembered, remained absolutely truthful and life-like so long as the Roman engraver retained the art of portrait cutting—and records such a mass of historical events as to form a veritable "Grangerized" Roman History—constructed solely of contemporaneous material, and containable in a very insignificant space.
